Meguiar's Ultimate Compound is applied with a pad in back and forth motions. Recommended for cars with scratches and swirl marks, it's an abrasive polishing and rubbing compound that will restore colour and reflectivity. It's also Clearcoat safe and application was effortless.

The leading edges of the front doors are exposed to brake dust so the Ultimate Compound was used to get the Titanium Silver back again! The bodywork took on a lot more depth of shine once Rob had finished, he noticed the results instantly.

To condition the paintwork prior to waxing, Meguiar's Deep Crystal Polish was applied with a fresh applicator pad. Once buffed off using a microfibre cloth, the paintwork was ready for its final coat.

Dodo Juice's Hard Candy will put that finishing touch on the paintwork. Using a Meguiar's applicator pad, it went on with ease and as a newbie to Dodo, Rob was really impressed with the results.

No detail is finished without a tyre dressing. Rob used a paintbrush to apply the product, which is great because it works into the sidewall lettering and avoids making a mess of the wheels. This was the end result.

Four hours later and these were the results... Silver can be a tricky customer, but the depth of shine following the detail was amazing. Remember, this was all done by hand as well. The attention to detail that Ultimate Finish put in just made the end product a league apart. The E39 has been effortless to clean since. Water just beads straight off!
